Looking for something more than a traditional beach trip for spring break? Do you have an interest in agriculture and traveling? Join us for this spring break study abroad experience in Nicaragua. It is perfect for first time travelers or seasoned veterans. The group will tour various Nicaraguan commodities facilities- rice, tobacco, horse and bananas. Experts in the field will take students through the process of raising, processing, and making their products. The group will experience true Nicaraguan culture including the cuisine, arts and history.

Students must have an interest in Agriculture, but participants do not have to be Ag majors to participate. Space is limited. Sign up now to assure that you can be included. Priority will be given to those who sign up early.
