Poli 2053-001
Introduction to Comparative Politics
Fall 2011
Wednesday 5:00-8:00  213 Tureaud

Instructor: Dr. Harry M. Mokeba
Office:  209 Stubbs Hall
Phone:  578-2143
Office Hours: MWF  9:30-10:30
           MWF  11:30-12:30
           MW  3:00-5:00

Objective: The course is designed to provide students with the tools necessary for examining politics across the countries of the world. In particular, we will provide a foundation for understanding the concepts on which political systems operate, the forces that account for change and continuity and the basis for comparing political performance in the first, second and third worlds.

It is expected that by the end of the semester, students must have developed the analytical skills for explaining the differences and similarities existing in the select countries discussed in class. POLI 2053 is a general education course designed to improve broad knowledge, stimulate life-long learning and develop critical understanding of the political phenomena.

The University strives toward the following objectives for general education courses:

- Ability to think, describe, interpret and analyze the world.
- Facility to make sense of the world that impact on our own local system.
- The need to gain critical perspectives of the governments and institutions across various political systems.

Books: There is one major text required for this course.

G. Bingham Powell: Comparative Politics Today

You are also required to read assigned articles from the New York Times for the multiple choice tests and the two-country paper.

Student Responsibility: You are required to attend all class sessions and keep up with reading assignments in order to enhance your ability to participate in class discussions. There is a grade for class participation.

Examinations, Paper, and Grades: There will be an early take home exam, an in-class midterm exam, a brief comparative survey of recent events in TWO countries (not discussed in lectures) of your choice and a take-home final. Details of these assignments will be determined according to this formula.
