

CALL FOR PAPERS

The History Graduate Student Association at Louisiana State University is pleased to announce the 2011 Graduate History Conference, to take place on March 25 and 26, 2011. The conference is an opportunity for graduate student scholars to present original research and receive critical feedback from peers and experts in their respective fields. The keynote speaker is Thomas Sugrue, David Boies Professor of History and Sociology at the University of Pennsylvania and winner of the Bancroft Prize in American History for Origins of the Urban Crisis: Race and Inequality in Postwar Detroit.

We invite submissions from all fields and approaches of historical scholarship, covering all chronological and geographical boundaries.

PAPER PROPOSALS SHOULD BE SUBMITTED NO LATER THAN DECEMBER 1, 2010

Please limit proposals to 300 words. Submissions should include the scholar's name, home institution, e-mail address, working title, and brief description of the central argument, in addition to a copy of the scholar's curriculum vita.

If selected, participants must submit a final paper by February 1, 2011.

Please send proposals and questions to hgsa@tigers.lsu.edu or visit our website at http://www.lsu.edu/student_organizations/hgsa/.
