

The Academy for Educational Studies presents the

Critical Questions in Education Conference

A blind, peer-reviewed national gathering dedicated to sharing and learning

March 4 – 6, 2024
Hyatt Centric French Quarter Hotel
New Orleans, Louisiana

Deadline for proposals: January 15, 2024

The CQiE Conference encourages conversations and offers participants deliberate opportunities to present, talk, listen, and learn from one another—and to think about how they might change or develop their thinking about teaching and/or teacher education because of what they learn from others.

2024 Conversation Themes

Teaching: How we see it, and what we're doing about it

The teacher shortage

- Why are increasing numbers of young people turning away from teaching as a career choice? Why do so many teachers wonder if they should leave teaching?
- What inspires or motivates some people to stay in the profession, despite these obstacles? Why do some young people continue to choose teaching—as their profession of choice?
- How are school districts and teacher education programs responding to the shifting demand for teachers? What changes in recruiting, relationships with school districts, or program design have resulted from experienced shortages?

Graduate programs in education—Master's, Specialist, and Doctorate

- What stories might you share about the design and implementation of one of your institution's graduate education programs? What is (or was) the hope or plan for the degree? What problems did you face? What influenced your decision-making during the process?
- What do you remember and treasure most about the doctoral program you were in (or the master's or Specialist program)? If you were asked to tell "what you learned" or reveal "the perspective you gained" in that program, what would you say? What about the degree you received do you value most, and what about it was problematic or unrewarding?
- What is most rewarding, and most challenging, about teaching (or advising) in a graduate program—Master's, Specialist, or Doctorate?
- What are "must reads" for students in graduate education programs?

Looking at teaching—and seeing ourselves as teachers

- How has your perspective about teaching changed in the years since you entered the profession? How do you see things now?
- What does the future of teaching look like to you?

Or present on influential books

What is the best book, or best education-related book, you have ever read—a book that changed the way you understand human life, teaching, learning, and the task of education?

Or open topic

Come share conversations on conference questions while presenting on an education-related topic of your choice

The organizing committee seeks participants who offer well-considered and reflective analysis or evaluation. Original research, research review, scholarly efforts, eloquent advocacy, or reports of inspiring practice—all are welcome. The committee especially welcomes presentations that examine, or take account of, differing arguments or “sides” of a particular topic. Presentation options are:

- Individual paper/presentation: Single (or co-authored) papers or prepared presentations. The conference committee will group submissions based on commonality of theme or approach into a 60 or 75 minute session. Presenters will share the session, leaving time for discussion. The committee may arrange poster sessions for graduate student submissions, depending on the number of proposals.
- Panel discussion: Three or more presenters—named, by you, in the proposal—discuss alternative solutions, interpretations, or contrasting points of view on a specified subject or theme. Panels may be either 60 or 75 minutes in length, at the discretion of the organizing committee.
- Book response: Individual papers or panels on a book, especially one related to the theme questions.
