Shanghai
"City on the Sea"

Shanghai is the largest city and the economic center of China with a population of 18.7 million. Shanghai is located at the mouth of the Yangtze River, the longest river in China, to the west bank of the East China Sea and in the middle of China's east coastline. It is a modern metropolis with rich traditional Chinese cultures interweaving with western influences. Once a small sleepy fishing village in the 1800s, Shanghai has transformed into the most glamorous, prosperous and cultured city in China and all of Asia, earning the nickname “Paris of the East.”

Tongji University

Originally established as a medical school in 1907 by Erich Paulun, a German doctor in Shanghai, Tongji University is one of the oldest and most prestigious institutions of higher education in China. The name “Tongji” suggests cooperating to sail ahead in the same boat. As one of the leading centers for scientific research in China, Tongji University is a comprehensive university offering a wide range of programs in sciences, engineering, medicine, arts, law, education, economics and management. Over 50,000 students (about 2,000 international students) are now registered in the university’s 82 Bachelor’s, 209 Master’s and 78 doctoral programs.

Tongji’s main campus, designed by its faculty in the School of Architecture (one of the flagship programs in the country), was voted one of the most beautiful campuses in China. With five campuses across Shanghai, Tongji has easy access to all amenities and activities offered by the cosmopolitan city. At Tongji, a wide range of courses are taught in Chinese, English, German, Japanese, Korean and others by the top-notch faculty. Tongji also provides rich experience for students who are eager to advance their extracurricular interests. Are you interested in learning Chinese folk operas or Chinese musical instruments? Picking up a few tricks of Chinese kung-fu? Sharpening your photographic skills? Having your first cartoon exhibit? Tongji has it all.
