3rd ed. Thames and Hudson. 2011

Course Goals: CMST 3040: Performance Composition is designed to provide students with the tools and skills to write, adapt, create and embody various types of personal, political, cultural and professional texts for the performance stage. This course is based in the assumption that embodied performance is a unique heuristic for coming to experience and understand the world around us. In order to succeed in this course, everyone involved (including your instructor) must keep in mind that this course is about the process of discovery rather than achieving a preconceived goal.

Through the semester we hope to:

a. Stimulate an awareness of how our bodies and voices perform both on the stage and in various contexts
b. Think critically about physical, social and aesthetic space
c. Cultivate, expand and defamiliarize our understanding of language as a tool for understanding the world around us d. Reconsider our approach to knowledge by questioning, how we come to know what we know and engaging in performance composition and practice as a heuristic tool
e. Discover the ability to see, hear, think and create innovative connections between various aspects of human experience through performance.
f. Continue to sharpen our basic communication skills

Course Requirements and Expectations

a. This a 3000 level course with 2040 Performance of Literature as a perquisite. Your choice to take this course allows me to assume that you found something enjoyable and valuable about the study and practice of performance. While 3040 will certainly present some familiar and some new challenges and uncertainties, I am operating under the assumption that you are open to struggling through those challenges. In short, I expect that you want to be here and that you want to perform.
b. This class takes a different approach to knowledge acquisition and assignment completion. I do not know what your performances will look like or what you will discover. This class is in large part about letting go of the idea of a preconceived end goal we must work toward and being open to chance, possibility, serendipity and surprise. This approach will be challenging for everyone involved—including myself! It will require patience, trust, hard work and an open mind.

c. Attendance: As members of a learning community, instructors and students agree to a tacit social contract. That contract ensures that all participants will attend every class meeting, engage one another in an informed and spirited manner, and complete all assigned responsibilities on time. In other words, when you signed up for this course, attendance and participation became two of your assigned responsibilities. This is particularly true in a class dedicated to active performance, wherein the role of audience-member is an important element. You are allowed 3 no-questions-asked excused absences. After that I will deduct 20 pts. from your final grade in the course. (e.g. you lose 20 pts. if you are absent 4 times, 40pts. for 5, ect.). This includes doctor’s appointments, sickness, funerals, and flat tires. The only absences excused from this policy are university-sponsored events etc.

d. Major Performances: The focus of this class is well established: the composition and execution of live performance. You must deliver all four major assigned performances in order to receive a passing grade in the course. It is imperative, due to the time constraints of each semester, for performances to be given on the days that they are assigned. The penalties for missing a performance are severe as a result: failure to perform on an assigned day will result in the reduction of one letter grade for each class period missed until the performance is completed. Your earliest chance to complete the performance requirement is after everyone else has fulfilled his/her spot, or if another becomes available. If you miss class, come prepared to perform every class period until the performance requirement is fulfilled. Performances must be memorized.

e. Minor Performances: In addition to the four major performances you will complete in this course you will give four minor performances throughout the semester. These exercises are designed to allow you to experiment with various texts and techniques in front of a live audience. I fully expect that what you discover through your mini performances will become potential raw material for your major performances. Because of time constraints the penalty for missing mini performances is more severe. Failure to give a mini performance on the assigned day will result in a half credit deduction. You will then have one class day to make it up before receiving a zero for the assignment.
f. Quizzes and Exams: Over the course of the semester you will take six quizzes and two major exams (a midterm and a final). The dates and content of each quiz are listed on the tentative course schedule. I do not offer make-up quizzes should you be absent on the day of a scheduled quiz or exam. However, I do drop your lowest quiz grade. If you know you are going to miss class for a university excused absence it is your responsibility to schedule to take the quiz early.

g. HopKins Black Box Shows: The Hopkins Black Box theatre serves not only as a classroom space for students of performance studies but as an experimental laboratory theatre space where faculty and graduate students produce and direct full-length performance productions and guest artists perform and/or host workshops. For students of performance, these productions provide an invaluable opportunity to broaden their understanding of performance as object of analysis and an epistemological method for approaching a wide variety of cultural texts. Thus, you are required to attend two black box productions over the course of the semester. You must attend Nico Wood’s guest artist production of Sideshow on Thursday 9/18 at 7:30. The second performance you attend is your choice.

h. Written Work: As the title of this course implies, the primary focus of this course is the composition of performance. Much of the composition process involves writing in ways that are probably familiar and unfamiliar to you.

   a. Composition Journal: You are required to keep a composition journal where you complete various creative writing exercises, reflect upon a concept or idea and free write. The idea is that the creative writing you do in your journal will provide material to draw on for both major and mini performances. I will assign some form of journal activity most class days. I will collect your journal at midterm and again at the final exam.

   b. 5 page HBB Analysis Paper: Part of understanding performance is learning how to articulate your response to performance by thoughtful analysis. Everyone is required to see Nico Wood’s production of Sideshow 9/18 @ 7:30 so that we might use the production as an exemplar for understanding how to conduct a performance analysis using the DIET formula. Then you will write your own 5-page analysis of the second show you attend in the HBB. The quality of your writing matters and is part of the content of this course. I will assess your writing in terms of both content and style. Style includes components such as paper organization, sentence structure, accurate word choice, typographical mistakes, passive voice, spelling, and basic grammar errors.
Cellphones and Computers: I expect that all cell-phones will be entirely deactivated upon entering the Black Box. Vibrate is not an acceptable option. If you’re caught texting at any point during class, you will be asked to leave. If your phone makes any sort of noise, whatsoever, be it a ring or a vibration, during a performance, you will be docked 50% of your performance grade. This policy extends to surfing the Internet. There are no excuses, save for a direct order from me to do so.

Accommodation: The Americans with Disabilities Act and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973: If you have a disability that may have some impact on your work in this class and for which you may require accommodations, please see a coordinator in the Office for Disability Affairs (112 Johnston Hall) so that such accommodations may be arranged. After you receive the accommodation letters, please meet with me to discuss the provisions of those accommodations.
