The post-Cold War era marks the first time that the majority of the world’s governments were democratic. However, the norm for the vast majority of human history was rule by a dictatorship in one form or another. This class aims to draw a deeper understanding of the historical, cultural, and political contexts that shape modern authoritarian regimes, past and present. This course, then, will introduce students to concepts, ideas, and theories in the field of authoritarian studies, and their application and practice in the real world. LSU graduates will demonstrate an understanding of the informing factors of global interdependence, including economic forces, political dynamics, and cultural and linguistic difference. The class consists of three parts: the first part explores approaches and rough classifications of authoritarian regimes. The second part examines the policies, preferences, and outcomes of various authoritarian regimes. The third and final part of the class looks at the lifespans of authoritarian regimes, including their continuance and demise, as well as the complicated process of democratization.

Required Textbook:

ISBN: 978-1137305794

Textbooks are available at the Bookstore. Should you find yourself especially fond of the textbook, copies are also available cheaply through online book dealers. Enough changes have been made between the 2nd and 3rd editions that I strongly caution students from relying on older versions of the book.

Course Requirements
The following several components make up the final grade:

• Participation – The class is structured as a seminar. As such, participating in class lectures and discussions in an active and constructive manner is an integral part of this class. Earning participation points in a class you are not regularly attending will be difficult. Participation will make up 15% of your overall score.

• Reaction papers – Students will write three assessments, 6-8 pages per paper, for each of the three class sections. These papers are to be critical analyses that investigate a question raised by the readings and/or in class, and supplemented by additional sources. Grades for reaction paper will be 10% apiece, for a total of 30% of your overall grade.

• Midterm exam – One in-class exam will be given during the course, encompassing the material covered in the first half of class. The midterm exam will be worth 25% of your overall score.

• Final Exam - The course will have a final exam that covers material from the second half of the class. The final exam will be worth 30% of your overall grade.

Assignment Policy
The instructor reserves the right to change the listed assignments. Students will receive a revised syllabus if the listing of course assignments changes.

Attendance Policy
Class attendance is the responsibility of the student, and each student is expected to attend all classes. Any student who finds it necessary to miss class assumes responsibility for making up examinations, obtaining lecture notes, and otherwise compensating for what the student may have missed from class. The instructor will determine the validity of a student’s reason(s) for any absences and will assist those students who have valid reasons and documentation.

Valid documentable reasons for absences include:
1. Illness
2. Serious family emergency
3. Special curricular requirements such as judging trips or field trips
4. Court-imposed legal obligations such as subpoenas or jury duty
5. Military obligations
6. Serious weather conditions
7. Religious observances

Disability Code
The Office of Disability Services assists students in identifying and developing accommodations and services to help overcome barriers to the achievement of personal and academic goals. Services are available for students with temporary or permanent disabilities. Accommodations and services are based on the individual student’s disability-based need. Students must provide current documentation of their disabilities. Students should contact the office early to arrange the necessary accommodations. ~ LSU General Catalog

Late Work
Please avoid turning in late work. I realize life happens and that you may not always be able to submit your work on time. I will accept one unexcused late assignment at a deduction of 10% for each day it is late. Any additional unexcused late assignments will receive a deduction of 20% for each day they are late. An assignment is late when an assignment is not available, or incomplete, on the date it is due.

Academic Integrity
LSU set high academic and personal standards for its students when it adopted the Commitment to Community guidelines in 1995. All students are expected to read and familiarize themselves with the LSU Code of Student Conduct (especially Sec. 10) to know both what is expected from them and of the consequences for any offences. For more specifics, see the following website: https://www.lsu.edu/saa/
Plagiarism and Citation Method
As a student at LSU, your responsibility is to refrain from plagiarizing another’s academic property. To this end, you must utilize an appropriate citation method for all coursework. Ignorance of a citation method is no excuse for academic misconduct. One tool available to assist you in correct citations is the references function in Microsoft Word. This program automatically formats the information you input according to the citation method you select for the document. This program also has the ability to generate a reference or works cited page for the information you input. The version of Microsoft Word with these added features is available in most University computer labs.

Expectations of Written Work
All papers are to be college-level papers. This means that they are to be typed, spell-checked and edited, well written with a logical flow of thought, and correctly cited. LSU’s Communication across the Curriculum center is a terrific resource for help with writing papers.

Group Work and Unauthorized Assistance
Each student must complete all work without assistance from a classmate or group, unless stated explicitly by the instructor so that the instructor can assess individual performance on each assignment. If the students have a group- or partner-based project assigned, each student may still have individual work to complete. Read the syllabus and assignment directions carefully. When in doubt, e-mail the instructor or ask during class. Seeking clarification is the sole responsibility of the student. Assuming group or partner based work is acceptable without permission constitutes a violation of the LSU Code of Student Conduct.

Special notices
1. Please do not use cellphones during class time. Laptops and tablets are permissible for taking notes in class, though students should take note of the growing body of literature that indicates that students who use longhand note-taking actually remember and understand more compared to students who relied on their computers or on online lectures (The Scientific American). https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/a-learning-secret-don-t-take-notes-with-a-laptop/
2. If students have a simple question that could have been answered by reading the syllabus, I will charge students one quarter, dropped into my coffee mug, for answering. I will be lenient on what constitutes a “simple question,” but do keep this penalty in mind. This fine does not apply to questions about or clarifications of the syllabus, or of course for any question, comment or concern regarding anything outside the syllabus.
