THE NEED
In today’s fast-paced and ever-changing marketplace, employees seek opportunities for career advancement through educational programs with a quick return on investment. Similarly, employers need just-in-time training for specific skills, and a flexible team that can adapt as technology changes.

Employers also are routinely providing employees with tuition reimbursement or paying directly for employee’s education in support of upskilling, reskilling, retention and promotion. Digital and Continuing Education @ LSU provides high-quality training and degrees with robust student support. Employers can take advantage of low-cost, predictable tuition to support their teams while growing their businesses by attracting and keeping the best talent.
